References

References

Dalanius, M. (1994). Early trauma and adult resiliency: A midlife follow-up study of young children whose mothers were political prisoners during the Greek civil war. Stockholm: Karolinska Institute.

McBroom, P. (2002, September 20). Positive emotions, including laughter are important paths out of trauma, according to UC Berkeley psychologist. Campus News.

McDermott, J. (2002, September 20). Positive emotions, including laughter are important paths out of trauma, according to UC Berkeley psychologist. Campus News.

McDermott, J. (2002, September 20). Positive emotions, including laughter are important paths out of trauma, according to UC Berkeley psychologist. Campus News.

References

References

